<sup>1</sup> The tomb of 3h.t-mh.w (G 2375) is situated close to the tomb of the vizier Senedjemib Inti (G2370), the latter who was vizier under Djedkare and Unis. According to Brovarski, 3h.t-mh.w's tomb was already on the site before Senedjemib Inti began building his mastaba, this indicates that 3h.t-mh.w dates to sometime before the reign of Djedkare: E. Brovarski, The Sennedjemib Complex Part I: The Mastabas of Sennedjemib Inti (G 2370), Khnumenti (G 2374), and Sennedjemib Mehi (G 2378) (Boston, 2000), 2.

In this case, Couyat and Montet comment that the inscription is written in the style of the Old Kingdom, but by an unskilful hand: Couyat and Montet, Inscriptions hieroglyphiques, 90. <sup>4</sup> Relationship deductive: sister (1)-(3) are identified as the daughters (s3.t) of S3-Pth, and while they likely shared a father, it is possible they may have been half-siblings by a different mother.

<sup>6</sup> Dated to the 12th dynasty by Bostico, Stele Egiziane, 39. The writing of šs mnht as  first appears during the reign of Senwosret III, and the offering formula has no characteristics suggesting a 13th dynasty date (i.e. the writing of Osiris with  (Gardiner Q2), the inclusion of the epithet wḥm.w ʿnh for the deceased etc.): Ilin-Tomich A., “Changes in the htp-dj-nsw Formula in the Late Middle Kingdom and the Second Intermediate Period,” ZÄS 138 (2011), 21. This suggests a late 12th dynasty, perhaps early 13th dynasty date – at the earliest. However, the various military titles (ir.y-pd.t, 3tw ʿ3 n(.y) niw.t etc.), as well as the title wr mdw šmʿ.w and one referring to the hnr.t-wr.t ‘great enclosure’ become very frequently attested from the 13th dynasty onwards: Quirke, Titles and Bureaux, 87, 94; Grajetzki, “Setting a State Anew,” 236, 255.

Suggested date: mid-late 12th dynasty onwards (?).<sup>5</sup>

Notes.

<sup>1</sup> Identified as the daughter of Nb.t-Sn.y; so they are at least half-siblings.

<sup>3</sup> Identified as  $s^3=f h k^3 ^c h Mntw-htp ir.n Ti$  – where the masculine suffix pronoun  $=f$  likely refers to NN (i) since his mother is explicitly identified as Ti.

<sup>4</sup> Perhaps another son of NN (i) and Ti as he is positioned behind Mntw-htp, although his name and any titles he may have had are damaged.

<sup>5</sup> The writing of  $\overline{s}s mnht$  as  $\overline{s}s$ , which first appeared in the reign of Senwosret III, suggest a date from the mid-12th dynasty onwards. The name of Osiris is written with  $\overline{s}$  (Gardiner Q1) instead of the later  $\overline{s}$  (Gardiner Q2): Ilin-Tomich A., “Changes in the htp-di-nsw Formula in the Late Middle Kingdom and the Second Intermediate Period,” ZÄS 138 (2011), 21. The occurrence of wr-mḏw Šm<sup>c</sup>.w and  $^c nh.w n(.y) niw.t$ , however, are more common from the late Middle Kingdom onwards: Grajetzki, “Setting a State Anew,” 236, 255; Quirke, Titles and Bureaux, 87.

Franke D., Das Heiligtum des Hekaib auf Elephantine: Geschichte eines Provinzheiligtums im Mittleren Reich (Heidelberg, 1994), 80.

Suggested date: Late 13th to Second Intermediate Period.<sup>3</sup>

Notes.

<sup>2</sup> The stela was dedicated to the deified Heqaib, who had a sanctuary in Elephantine.

<sup>3</sup> Donadoni Roveri suggests a date in the late Middle Kingdom, somewhere in the late 13th dynasty. This is based on the visual layout of the stela as well as several literary indications: Donadoni Roveri A.M., “Una stele di Heka-ib al Museo di Torino,” Oriens Antiquus 13 (1974), 55-56. The inclusion of the epithet wḥm.w ḥnh for the deceased, as well as the phrase ṯw nḏm n ḥnh suggests a 13th dynasty date. The writing of ḥtp-di-nsw.t also suggests a date towards the end of the 13th dynasty and the beginning of the Second Intermediate Period. The oxen and fowl signs, too, are represented in a form common in the Second Intermediate Period: Ilin-Tomich A., “Changes in the ḥtp-dj-nsw Formula in the Late Middle Kingdom and the Second Intermediate Period,” ZÄS 138 (2011), 21-22, 24. Additionally, the title s3b r3-Nhn and wr mḏw Šmḥ.w are most frequently attested during the late Middle Kingdom and Second Intermediate Period: Quirke, Titles and Bureaux, 87, 89; Grajetzki, “Setting a State Anew,” 236; Grajetzki W., “Notes on administration of the Second Intermediate Period,” in M. Marée (ed) The Second Intermediate Period (Thirteenth—Seventeenth Dynasties) (Leuven, 2010), 310.

Grajetzki W., Die Höchste Beamten der Ägyptischen Zentralverwaltung zur Zeit des Mittleren Reiches: Prosopographie, Titel & Titelreihen (Berlin, 2003), 30-31, no. I.36.

Suggested date: 13th dynasty – 17th dynasty or early New Kingdom.<sup>2</sup>

Notes.

<sup>1</sup> Currently the box coffin is in fragments all over the world (PM II<sup>2</sup>, 688). Upper section (head) is in the Cairo Museum (Ent. 66867), the middle section (upper foot) is in the National museum of Prague, the lower part (feet) is in the National Museum of Warsaw.

<sup>2</sup> An early New Kingdom date is also even possible (Grajetzki, Court Officials, 142). The few tombs located at Deir el-Medina at this time date to the end of 12th dynasty. The tomb of a vizier in Thebes at the end of 12th dynasty seems unusual, although it could be the southern vizier. The first burials of senior officials buried here are dated to late 13th or 17th dynasty when the court was relocated to Thebes from Ijtawy near el-Lisht (= Grajetzki, Höchsten Beamten, 31). See discussion in Section 5.2.3.

<sup>1</sup> Not specified as such, but likely. Could also be the wife of his son, Imn.y (i).

<sup>2</sup> Columned lists of people at the bottom of stelae first appear late in the reign of Amenemhat III and are fairly common in the first half of the 13th dynasty. The motif of a man on a chair smelling a lotus is rare on stelae from the first half of the 13th dynasty. On stylistic grounds, the stela can be attributed to the second part of the 13th dynasty, around the reigns of Neferhotep I and Sobekhotep IV : Franke and Marée, Egyptian Stelae in the British Museum, 61.

<sup>1</sup> Based on her position on the stela. She is positioned with her own offering table on the far right of the first register, echoing a similar scene on the far left of Nfr, seated in front of an offering table while his son offers to him.

Notes.

<sup>3</sup> Relationship deductive: brothers (1)-(4) are identified as the sons (s3) of S3-Pth, and while they likely shared a father, it is possible they may have been half-siblings by a different mother.

<sup>4</sup> Relationship deductive: sister (1)-(3) are identified as the daughters (s3.t) of S3-Pth, and while they likely shared a father, it is possible they may have been half-siblings by a different mother.

<sup>6</sup> Dated to the 12th dynasty by Bostico, Stele Egiziane, 39. The writing of ss mnht as  first appears during the reign of Senwosret III, and the offering formula has no characteristics suggesting a 13th dynasty date (i.e. the writing of Osiris with  (Gardiner Q2), the inclusion of the epithet w3m.w 3nh for the deceased etc.): Ilin-Tomich A., “Changes in the htp-dj-nsw Formula in the Late Middle Kingdom and the Second Intermediate Period,” ZÄS 138 (2011), 21. Suggested date: Late 12th dynasty – 13th dynasty.<sup>6</sup>

Notes.

<sup>1</sup> Relationship deductive: since Rs-snb is identified as the father of the Nfr-ḥtp, and Snb=f is the brother of the Nfr-ḥtp, they may share a father.

<sup>2</sup> Relationship deductive: based on the assumption that Nfr-ḥtp and Snb=f are filial brothers, and thus may share the same mother and father.

<sup>3</sup> Relationship deductive: since š3-Snb and Snb=f are brothers of Nfr-ḥtp, they may also be brothers.

<sup>4</sup> Relationship deductive: since Hnsw is the sister of Nfr-ḥtp, and Nfr-ḥtp and Snb=f are brothers, Hnsw may then also be the sister of Snb=f.

<sup>5</sup> Possibly another brother of Nfr-ḥtp.

Notes.

<sup>1</sup> Relationship deductive: maternal filiation is specified only for Hr.y but it is possible they share the same mother.

<sup>2</sup> Relationship deductive: Hr.y is identified as the son of Sm[h]-m-ib, if they share the same mother, he would be Shṭp-ib (iii)’s brother.

<sup>3</sup> See Franke and Marée, Egyptian Stelae of the British Museum, 58. Suggested date: 18th dynasty, reign of Thutmose III to Amenhotep II.<sup>15</sup>

Notes.

<sup>1</sup> Mr.yt-Imn.w is only attested on Berlin Statue 2316, and on no other monuments of Imn.w-m-ḥ3.t. She probably died and Imn.w-m-ḥ3.t remarried B3k.t-Imn.w, who is attested in all his other monuments.

<sup>3</sup> She is referred to as S3.t-wr.t on the rock stela at Gebel el-Silsileh, for example.

<sup>4</sup> Iḥ-ms is also the wife of Hw-m-š3.w and the mother of Imn.w-m-ḥ3.t's second wife, B3k.t-Imn.w.

<sup>5</sup> Hw-m-š3.w is also the husband of Imn.w-m-ḥ3.t's sister, Iḥ-ms.

<sup>12</sup> Wsr may have also been depicted in TT82, though his figure is badly damaged and his name is also lost (see Urk. IV 1061).

<sup>14</sup> The shabtis and shabti box contain the name of Imn.w-m-ḥ3.t, and the titles, 'scribe, guardian of Amun,' and on the shabti box as 'scribe who counts the grain of Amun.' Based on Schneider's shabti typology, Bleiberg dates them to somewhere between the reigns of Thutmose IV and Akhenaten. So this is not the Imn.w-m-ḥ3.t of TT82. Based on the similarity of titles to Imn.w-m-ḥ3.t of TT82, the Imn.w-m-ḥ3.t of the shabtis was most likely a descendent, perhaps a grandson or great-grandson: Bleiberg E., "Reused or restored? The Wooden Shabti of Amenemhat in the Brooklyn Museum", in S.H. D'Auria, Offerings to the Discerning Eye: An Egyptological Medley in Honor of Jack A. Josephson, (Leiden, 2010), 39-43 (Shabtis figs.1-2, Shabti box, figs. 3-6); James T.G.H, Corpus of Hieroglyphic Inscriptions in the Brooklyn Museum, (Brooklyn, NY, 1974), nos.188, 189, 191, pls. XLIX, L.

<sup>15</sup> Davies, Tomb of Amenemhet, 1, 8. The stela within TT 82 is dated to Year 28 of the reign of Thutmose III. The rock stela at Gebel el-Silsileh contains the cartouche of Amenhotep II.

Notes.

<sup>1</sup> May be related to Imn.w-m-h3.t [170], perhaps his son, who is also named Imn.w-m-h3.t. The former has a niece (daughter of one of his brothers) who is named Nfr.t-ir.y. But this may be too far-fetched, as both names are not uncommon during this period.
