

The Implementation of the Policy of Reconciliation in NSW Schools

Nina Burrridge

B. A. Dip. Ed.(UWA), M.A.(Macquarie), M.A.C.E.

A thesis submitted in partial fulfilment of the requirements of the degree of Doctor of Philosophy

Australian Centre for Educational Studies
Macquarie University

November 2003

Copyright in relation to this Thesis

Under the Copyright Act 1968 (several provision of which are referred to below), this material must be used only under the normal conditions of scholarly fair dealing for the purposes of research, criticism or review. In particular no results or conclusions should be extracted from it, nor should it be copied or closely paraphrased in whole or in part without the written consent of the author. Proper written acknowledgement should be made for any assistance obtained from this material.

Under Section 35 (2) of the Copyright Act 1968 'the author of a literary, dramatic, musical or artistic work is the owner of any copyright subsisting in the work'. By virtue of Section 32 (1) copyright 'subsists in an original literary, dramatic, musical or artistic work that is unpublished' and of which the author was an Australian citizen, an Australian protected person or a person resident in Australia.

The Act, by Section 36 (1) provides : 'Subject to this Act, the copyright in a literary, dramatic, musical or artistic work is infringed by a person who, not being the owner of the copyright and without the licence of the owner of the copyright, does in Australia, or authorises the doing in Australia of, any act comprised in the copyright'.

Section 31 (1) (a) (i) provides that copyright includes the exclusive right to 'reproduce the work in a material form'. Thus, copyright is infringed by a person who, not being the owner of the copyright, reproduces or authorises the reproduction of a work, or of more than a reasonable part of the work, in a material form, unless the reproduction is a 'fair dealing' with the work 'for the purpose of research or study' as further defined in Sections 40 and 41 of the Act.

Section 51 (2) provides that "Where a manuscript, or a copy, of material of other similar literary work that has not been published is kept in a library of a university or other similar institution or in an archives, the copyright in the material or other work is not infringed by the making of a copy of the material or other work by or on behalf of the officer in charge of the library or archives if the copy is supplied to a person who satisfies an authorized officer of the library or archives that he requires the copy for the purpose of research or study'.

* Thesis' includes 'treatise', 'dissertation' and other similar productions.

DEDICATION

This work is dedicated to my extended family: Those who are closest to me and have endured the longest and the most Brett, Emma and Hugh, I hope the price was not too high. To all my dear and loyal friends, activists, chardonnay sipping bleeding hearts one and all, who understood the pressures this work brought to my life.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

Many people have assisted me in completing this work and I wish to acknowledge their efforts from those who were involved in the original research project, to those who patiently edited the drafts, provided excellent academic advice and wise counsel throughout the duration of my study.

In particular I would like to thank my supervisor Assoc Prof. Pamela Coutts for her advice and encouragement and patient corrections of drafts and Dr Jim Kohen, assistant supervisor, long time colleague and friend who gave me such encouragement to finish the work. My two previous supervisors, Dr David Saltmarsh and Assoc Prof. Geoffrey Riordan, are also deserving of thanks for guiding the early part of this thesis.

Others in need of mention include Annemieke Vimal du Monteil whose close reading and patient editing of final drafts really enabled me to proceed to the end. Chris Stanton who helped to format each chapter and whose support was unwavering in the final months of my study.

Finally, the staff of the School of Education deserve a sincere thank you, particularly those on level 9 who followed the progress of my work, gave me courage and delighted in any hint that I saw a light at the end of the tunnel – and reassured me that it wasn't a train coming....!

November 2003.

TABLE OF CONTENTS

List of Tables.....	x
List of Figures	xi
Appendix.....	xii
Abstract.....	xiii
Certificate.....	xvi
 CHAPTER 1: Introduction.....	 1
1.1Notations.....	5
 CHAPTER 2: Literature Review.....	 6
2.1 Purpose of a Literature Review.....	6
2.2 The Significant Discourses and Literature of Reconciliation.....	8
2.3 A Framework for Defining Reconciliation.....	9
2.4 Token References to Reconciliation.....	11
2.5 The Formal Policy Discourse of Reconciliation.....	12
2.5.1 A Brief Historical Overview of the Term ‘Reconciliation’ in the Policy Context.....	13
2.5.2 Speeches.....	14
2.5.3 Documents of Reconciliation.....	17
2.5.4 Reports.....	20
2.6 The Popular Discourse.....	25
2.7 The Academic Discourse.....	31
2.7.1 The Historical Context and Reconciliation.....	32
2.7.2 The Political Discourse.....	34
2.8 Other Discourses.....	37
2.8.1 The Psychology of Reconciliation.....	38
2.8.2 The Religious Context.....	39
2.9 Education Discourse.....	41

2.9.1	Statements of Reconciliation in Education
	Policy Documents.....	44
2.9.2	Reconciliation in Education Literature.....	46

CHAPTER 3: Meanings and Perspectives of Reconciliation in the

	Australian Socio-political Context.....	52
3.1.	Introduction.....	52
3.2.	Defining Reconciliation.....	54
3.3	Reconciliation as Official Policy.....	57
3.4	Community Perceptions.....	62
3.5	Dissenting Voices on Reconciliation.....	65
3.6	Reconciliation at the Crossroads.....	68
3.7	Practical Reconciliation.....	71
3.8	Reconciliation as a Nationalist Discourse.....	73
	3.8.1. Reconciliation as Assimilation.....	76
3.9	Reconciliation and the Stolen Generations.....	80
3.10	Conclusion.....	89

CHAPTER 4: An Explanation of the Research Method..... 92

4.1	Alternative Research Paradigms.....	92
4.2	Conducting Research with Indigenous Peoples.....	95
	4.2.1 Post-hegemonic Research and the Silenced
	Spiritual Voice.....	102
4.3	The Research Question.....	104
4.4	Method.....	106
	4.4.1 Overview of Study Design.....	107
	4.4.2 Approvals and Ethics Procedures.....	107
4.5	Data Collection Methods.....	108
	4.5.1 The Survey – Quantitative Data.....	108
	4.5.2 Survey Sample.....	109
4.6	Interviews with Key Informants – Qualitative Data.....	109
	4.6.1 Focus Groups – Qualitative Data.....	110

4.7	Introduction to Data Analysis.....	112
4.7.1	Notations about the Survey.....	113
4.7.2	Survey Response Rates.....	114
4.7.3	Distribution of Survey Responses by District and Dioceses.....	115
4.7.4	Coding of Quantitative Data.....	116
4.8	Notations About Analysis of Free Response Questions.....	116
4.8.1	Key Informants Interviews and Focus Groups.....	116
4.8.2	Notations About Focus Group Analysis.....	117
4.8.3	Content Analysis.....	117
4.8.4	Notations About Key Informants Analysis.....	118
4.8.5	The Process.....	118
4.9	Notations About Reporting of Results for All Data.....	119
CHAPTER 5: Meanings of Reconciliation in the School Context.....		120
5.1	Schools in the Context of Society.....	120
5.2	Analysis of Responses on Meanings and Perspectives of Reconciliation.....	121
5.3	Analysis of Survey Data.....	122
5.3.1	Further Explanations Related to the Categorisation of Data.	122
5.3.2	The Process of Categorising Responses from the Survey..	122
5.4	Survey Results.....	124
5.4.1	Comparisons with Community Responses.....	125
5.4.2	Negative Responses.....	125
5.4.3	Theme 1: Partnerships, Harmony, Walking Together, Learning Together.....	126
5.4.4	Comparisons with Community Responses.....	127
5.4.5	Theme 2: Social Justice, Equity and Saying Sorry....	127
5.4.6	Comparisons with Community Responses.....	129
5.4.7	Theme 3: Valuing Differences, Mutual Respect.....	130
5.4.8	Comparisons with Community Responses.....	131

5.4.9	Themes 4, 5 and 6:Acknowledgement; Recognition and Understanding; Acceptance.....	132
5.4.10	Comparisons with Community Responses.....	134
5.4.11	Theme 7: Unity, One People.....	135
5.5	Summary Comments and Discussion.....	135
5.6	Analysis of Focus Group and Key Informants Interviews.....	136
5.6.1	Focus Group Interviews.....	136
5.6.2	Key Informants Interviews.....	137
5.6.3	Process of Analysis.....	137
5.6.4	Cross-Cultural Sensitivities.....	138
5.6.5	Discourse Analysis.....	138
5.7	The Focus Group and Interview Findings.....	140
5.7.1	Focus Groups.....	140
5.7.2	The Elders.....	140
5.7.3	Aboriginal and non Aboriginal Educators in Focus Groups	144
5.8	Key Informants Interviews.....	146
5.9	Students' Views on Reconciliation.....	148
5.10	Community Responses and Friendships.....	150
5.11	Concluding Comments.....	150
CHAPTER 6: Survey Results.....		153
6.1	Survey Findings.....	153
6.1.1	Presence of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Students in Schools.....	153
6.2	ASSPA Committees and AEAs.....	155
6.3	Level of Staff Development.....	156
6.4	Type of Activities Undertaken by Schools.....	159
6.4.1	Cultural Activities.....	161
6.4.2	Curriculum Activities.....	161
6.4.3	Symbolic Activities.....	162
6.4.4	Staffing Issues.....	162
6.4.5	Gatherings.....	162

6.5 Level of Participation in School Activities and Presence of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Students..... 164

6.6 Levels of Support For Reconciliation..... 165

6.7 Issues Emerging from These Results..... 169

CHAPTER 7: The Role of Education in the Reconciliation Process.... 171

7.1 Aboriginal Education Policies and Reconciliation..... 172

7.2 The NSW Aboriginal Education Policy..... 173

7.3 The National Aboriginal Education Policy..... 173

7.4 Reconciliation and the Curriculum..... 174

7.5 Reconciliation and Improved Educational Outcomes for Indigenous Students..... 176

7.6 Reconciliation and Valuing Cultural Diversity..... 178

7.7 Can Reconciliation be Taught?..... 180

7.8 Conclusion..... 182

CHAPTER 8: Obstacles and Barriers to Reconciliation..... 183

8.1 Survey Responses..... 183

8.1.1 Parental and Community Attitudes..... 184

8.1.2 Special Treatment for Aboriginal People..... 185

8.1.3 Time Constraints and an Overcrowded Curriculum..... 186

8.1.4 No Aboriginal Students in the School and Lack of Cultural Diversity..... 186

8.1.5 Lack of Knowledge and Understanding of Indigenous Cultures..... 187

8.1.6 Apathy and Indifference — Community and Staff..... 188

8.1.7 Sensitivity of the Issues..... 188

8.1.8 Lack of Aboriginal Community Involvement in Schools. 189

8.1.9 Funding and Resources..... 189

8.1.10 Positive Comments..... 190

8 2 Key Informants Interviews..... 190

8.3 Comparisons with the General Community..... 193

CHAPTER 9: Teaching for Reconciliation: Best Practice in Teaching

	Resources.....	195
9.1	Discourse on Best Practice.....	196
9.1.1	Understanding Pedagogy.....	197
9.1.2	Understanding Cultural Protocols.....	200
9.1.3	Whole School Approach.....	201
9.2	Best Practice: Leadership for Reconciliation.....	204
9.2.1	Brief Overview of the Theory on Educational Leadership.....	204
9.3	Summary Characteristics of Supportive Schools.....	209
9.4	Best Practice Resources for the Teaching of Reconciliation.....	210
9.4.1	Types of Existing Materials.....	211
9.4.2	Types of Activities /Programs and Educational Materials Needed to Promote Reconciliation.....	213
9.4.3	Guidelines for Appropriate Resources when Teaching for Reconciliation.....	217
9.4.4	Sample Materials.....	219
9.4.5	Conclusion.....	222
	CHAPTER 10: Conclusion.....	223
10.1	Meanings of Reconciliation in the Australian Socio-political Context.....	223
10.2	Meanings and Perspectives of Reconciliation in the Educational Context.....	224
10.3	Responses of School Communities to Reconciliation.....	227
10.4	Perceived Level of Support for Reconciliation in City and Rural Schools.....	228
10.5	Barriers to Reconciliation.....	229
10.6	Best Practice Methodology and Resources.....	230
10.7	Strengths and Limitations of this Research.....	231
10.7.1	Statistical Limitations.....	231

10.7.2 The Nature of Qualitative Research and Reconciliation Studies..... 232

10.8 Implications for Research and Policy Formulation..... 232

POSTSCRIPT..... 234

REFERENCES..... 243

LIST OF TABLES

Table 4-1:	Number of Responses per School System and School Type	114
Table 5-1:	Themes that Emerged from an Analysis of Meanings of Reconciliation.....	124
Table 6-1:	Percentage of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Children Currently Enrolled in Sample Schools by School System...	154
Table 6-2:	Percentage of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Children Currently Enrolled by School Type.....	154
Table 6-3:	Questions on Activities.....	160
Table 6-4:	Activities Schedule.....	161
Table 6-5:	Perceived Attitude of Staff to Reconciliation in City and Rural Schools.....	166
Table 6-6:	Perceived Attitude of Students to Reconciliation in City and Rural Schools.....	167
Table 6-7:	Perceived Attitude of Staff to Reconciliation and Percentage of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Students.....	167
Table 6-8:	Perceived Attitude of Staff to Reconciliation Cross-tabulated with Level of Staff Development Undertaken by Schools	168
Table 8-1:	Perceived Barriers to Reconciliation in Schools.....	183
Table 9-1:	What other activities / programs would you like to see being done to promote Reconciliation in your school	214
Table 9-2:	What type of educational materials are needed in your school to help in the promotion of Reconciliation?.....	215

LIST OF FIGURES

Figure 2-1:	Reconciliation Typologies	10
Figure 6-1	Presence of Aboriginal Education Assistants and Aboriginal Student Support Parent Awareness Committee in Schools (all systems).....	155
Figure 6-2:	Level of Staff Development on Aboriginal History and Culture in the Last Twelve Months to December, 1998.....	157
Figure 6-3:	Level of Staff Development on Aboriginal History and Culture by Proportion of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Students.....	158
Figure 6-4:	Activities in Schools Aimed at Raising Awareness of Aboriginal History and Culture Organised with Reconciliation as the Main Aim.....	163
Figure 6-5:	School Participation in Events and Weeks by the Presence of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Students in the School.....	165

APPENDICES

Appendix 1.1	Survey Questionnaire.....	268
Appendix 1.2	Key informants interview Schedule.....	273
Appendix 1.3	Focus Groups Interview Schedule.....	275
Appendix 1.4	Survey Schools Data List.....	277
Appendix 1.5	Survey Question 10 Aggregation of Activities.....	278
Appendix 1.6	Relevant Tables Not Included in Body of Survey Analysis.....	279
Appendix 1.7	Glossary of Acronyms.....	284
Appendix 1.8	Letters Regarding Research.....	285

Abstract

The research detailed in this thesis investigated how schools in NSW responded to the social and political project of Reconciliation at the end of the 1990s.

The research used a multi-method research approach which included a survey instrument, focus group interviews and key informants interviews with Aboriginal and non Aboriginal teachers, elders and educators, to gather qualitative as well as quantitative data. Differing research methodologies, including Indigenous research paradigms, are presented and discussed within the context of this research. From the initial research questions a number of sub-questions emerged which included:

- The exploration of meanings and perspectives of Reconciliation evident in both the school and wider communities contexts and the extent to which these meanings and perspectives were transposed from the community to the school sector.
- The perceived level of support for Reconciliation in school communities and what factors impacted on this level of support.
- Responses of school communities to Reconciliation in terms of school programs and teaching strategies including factors which enhanced the teaching of Reconciliation issues in the classroom and factors which acted as barriers.

Firstly, in order to provide the context for the research study, the thesis provides a brief historical overview of the creation of the Council for Aboriginal Reconciliation. It then builds a framework through which the discourses of Reconciliation are presented and deconstructed. These various meanings and perspectives of Reconciliation are placed within a linear spectrum of typologies, from 'hard', 'genuine' or 'substantive' Reconciliation advocated by the Left, comprising a strong social justice agenda, first nation rights and compensation for past injustices, to the assimilationist typologies desired by members of the Right which suggest that Reconciliation is best achieved through the total integration of Aboriginal people into the mainstream community, with Aboriginal people accepting the reality of their dispossession.

In between these two extremes lie degrees of interpretations of what constitutes Reconciliation, including John Howard's current Federal Government interpretation of 'practical' Reconciliation. In this context "Left" and "Right" are defined less by political ideological lines of the Labor and Liberal parties than by attitudes to human rights and social justice. Secondly, and within the socio-political context presented above, the thesis reports on research conducted with Indigenous and non Indigenous educators, students and elders in the context of the NSW school system to decipher meanings and perspectives on Reconciliation as reflected in that sector. It then makes comparisons with research conducted on behalf of the Council for Aboriginal Reconciliation during the 1990s on attitudes to Reconciliation in the community. Perceived differences are analysed and discussed.

The research further explores how schools approached the teaching of Reconciliation through a series of survey questions designed to document the types of activities undertaken by the schools with Reconciliation as the main aim.

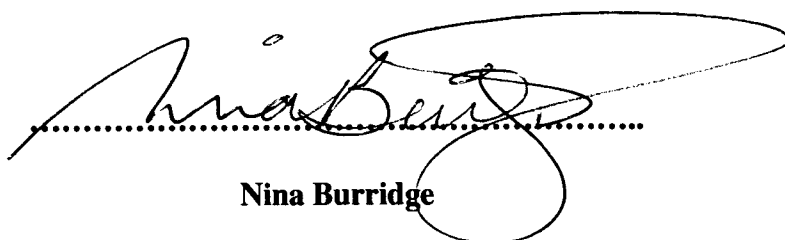

Research findings indicated that while both the community at large and the education community are overwhelmingly supportive of Reconciliation, both as a concept and as a government policy, when questioned further as to the depth and details of this commitment to Reconciliation and the extent to which they may be supportive of the 'hard' issues of Reconciliation, their views and level of support were more wide ranging and deflectionary.

Findings indicated that, in general, educators have a more multi-layered understanding of the issues related to Reconciliation than the general community, and a proportion of them do articulate more clearly those harder, more controversial aspects of the Reconciliation process (eg just compensation, land and sea rights, customary laws). However, they are in the main, unsure of its meaning beyond the 'soft' symbolic acts and gatherings which occur in schools. In the late 1990s, when Reconciliation was at the forefront of the national agenda, research findings indicate that while schools were organising cultural and curriculum activities in their teaching of Indigenous history or Aboriginal studies - they did not specifically focus on Reconciliation in their teaching programs as an issue in the community. Teachers did not have a clearly defined view of what Reconciliation entailed and schools were not teaching about Reconciliation directly within their curriculum programs.

The research also sought to identify factors which acted as enhancers of a Reconciliation program in schools and factors which were seen as barriers. Research findings clearly pointed to community and parental attitudes as important barriers with time and an overcrowded curriculum as further barriers to the implementation of teaching programs. Factors which promoted Reconciliation in schools often related to human agency and human relationships such as supportive executive leadership, the work of committed teachers and a responsive staff and community.

I certify that this thesis has not been submitted for a higher degree to any other university or institution.

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read 'Nina Burrridge', is written over a horizontal dotted line. The signature is fluid and cursive, with a large loop at the end.

7 November 2003